Deplores Quadros' Quitting

The forced resignation of President Janio Quadros of Brazil should be deplored by every right-thinking American. It represents a defeat for the people of that great country, and the other countries of South and Central America as well, and a victory for the wealthy ruling classes who have oppressed them for so long.

Seven months ago the common people, at long last, had acquired a champion in Dr. Quadros. But the forces of reaction, both within and without his country, have proved to be too strong.

Let us hope that unlike the overthrow of the Guatemalan government a few years ago and the attempted overthrow of the Cuban government a few months past, our government, through the CIA, did not play a prominent role. Let us further hope that this man of the people is speedily returned to office by the pressure of Brazilian public opinion, so that the work of improving health, education, and living standards may be carried forward.
